

A Note from our Director

Happy Holidays! This is my favorite time of year! It brings me so much joy and comfort and reminds me how lucky I am. I have my health, my family and my dearest friends. I do not take any of that for granted. It is the time to unwind, reflect, and take some much needed space to take care of yourself and rejuvenate for the New Year. No matter what steps you take to get there, it is imperative to do so in order to be your best self. This holiday season, I encourage you to hug your people tight, cherish the laughs, the games, the food, and even the disagreements. I am looking forward to our long standing traditions, and I am elated to be starting new ones with my grandchildren. We go see the lights, we decorate gingerbread houses, and they will be my co-judges in our first annual chopped-style scrambled egg competition! For the adults, we play games, we have a talent show, and each family wears matching pajamas for a prize as well. When I was raising my kids, I did not realize the traditions and expectations I was creating at the time. Here we are, almost 40 years later, and they still want their stockings stuffed, brand new, crisp dollar bills taped to their presents, and all of their gifts wrapped by me. (I take pride in my wrapping presentation. Custom bows and tags included!) Anyway, however you choose to celebrate, do it with love and compassion. Be kind to yourself. I hope your holiday is special and your New Year is filled with light.

With love, Dr. Diane D. Clare-Kearney

Teacher's Take

Kassandra's Take on How she builds confidence in our ESL Students

"As their case manager, I do my best to eliminate additional barriers while still empowering their native language. I just recently helped a student get back on her feet so she could come back to classes. I helped connect her with some resources and translated when necessary. I wanted to be there to help build her up so she can have the confidence and real world skills, but also let her know I was there to support her while navigating these conversations and scenarios."
